Philosophy

Scores of new technologies emerge from industry every day. Keeping abreast of these advancements makes graduating students competitive in the job market. In this curriculum, skills such as reading, writing, and mathematics usage focus upon understanding technical theory and operation. In this way, students develop research and data collection skills. The student that masters these skills naturally keeps current on the trends of technology and in turn makes them stronger candidates for employment in high-tech career fields. Homework is the essence of research and data collection in our curriculum and is of paramount importance if students are to understand the complex nature of technology.

Policy

Homework is a required element of all of our courses and is to be done outside of class. In nearly all cases, homework is an individual effort. Compromising any assignment (including homework) by copying, plagiarizing, or otherwise... cheating is a serious offense. All involved will receive no credit as well as disciplinary action. Homework must be completed using the stipulated format. It must receive a score of at least 85% to be considered acceptable. Due dates for homework have been established according to the student progress chart.

Resources

The textbook and parts kits issued to students are to be taken home and worked with there. Parts, drawing kits, tools, computer tutorials, and CAD software can be checked-out and used at home. These resources are available to any student upon request.

Enforcement

Failure to comply with this Homework Policy will result in disciplinary action. Late or incomplete homework indicates a lack of time or motivation necessary to complete the task. Therefore, missed due dates will result in academic detention until the missing tasks are turned-in and accepted. Initially, detention will be assigned during lunch. However, continued abuse of the Homework Policy will result in after school for various lengths of time. Other disciplinary actions will fall in line with our Classroom Management Plan.
